Multiplier Conference in Bologna, June 23rd, 2009

5

The main objectives

- to raise awareness of ecological issues among VET teachers for technical subjects (especially construction) and to supply learning contents and training materials that show how to use energy-saving materials and to reduce energy consumption in building construction
- to transfer, adapt and validate a modular curriculum for VET teachers for building construction and to qualify them as “European Energy and Building Material Advisers” in three European languages (i.e. in Italian, Turkish, and Slovenian)
- to spread the project contents and results through a variety of valorisation activities

The target groups

- VET teachers and trainers for building and construction who will acquire additional skills and competences to become capable offering general advice
- People who will work as “European energy saving and building material adviser” and who will be sensitized to the relevant subject purpose and receive specialized training
- Training providers who can immediately improve the quality of their VET measures and/ or offer new training courses which are based on the project results
- Employers in the building industries who will benefit from a higher number of better qualified people
